2. Mr. Brammell handed the DIA people a copy of the revised outline for subject, together with its introductory note. The paper was explained as a response to a DIA request that CIA prepare some publication responsive to Counterinsurgency and Cold War requirements listed in the now famous 16 EEIs acted on by the USIB on request of General Taylor. The outline, aimed at underdeveloped areas, expands the former Section 57 coverage and tries to provide all the basic intelligence needed on the subject. The expanded publication would be scheduled at the rate of 12 per year on some 40 areas.

3. Col. [REDACTED] and others discussed the need for currency of the material, originally thought to require renewal on an annual basis. They were invited to examine the proposed outline with this in mind to see how much of the data was more permanent and might last for four years. The DIA personnel took the paper with them for study and at the same time it was agreed that the subject be placed on the agenda for the forthcoming NIS Committee meeting.
